LOCAL NEWS.

Services in the Protestant churches this evening.

The Honolulu Rifles will meet for drill at their new armory this evening.

The Mutual Telephone Company meets in annual session at ten this morning.

The harbor front was very quiet last evening after the departure of all the steamers.

S. Cullen, Koolau, registered at the Hotel on Monday, and Aug. Ahrens, Waianae, yesterday.

Mr. Geo. Cavanaugh will shortly open a first-class lunch room in the upper story of Lincoln Block, King street.

A number of mules created some excitement on the Kinau wharf, just before the sailing of that steamer yesterday afternoon.

The old burnt district by the Pantheon Stables being about all burnt over again, the serious question arises where the next circus will pitch its tent.

Last evening Mr. Taro Ando, Japanese Consul, entertained the captain and officers of the Tsukuba at the consular residence, Nuuanu avenue. Many local officials and society people were present by invitation.

Two or three persons displayed the grossest bad manners, almost within arm's length of the King, on Palace Square last evening. They certainly made themselves liable to conviction on a charge of disorderly conduct. The rough seems to be developing fast in Honolulu.

At the Lyceum this evening there will be the monthly concert. Subject: Home Missions. The Rev. Mr. Lechler and Mr. F. W. Damon will speak on the work as they have found it progressing among the Chinese in their recent visit to Hawaii and Maui, and the Rev. S. E. Bishop will speak on our relations to the Japanese. A general and cordial invitation is extended.

At a meeting of the Draymen's Association, held a few evenings ago, it was decided to use all the means in their power to defeat the passage of the "Elevated Rail Road" Bill, which they understand is to be presented to the Legislature. The draymen, in taking this step, say that if the bill is passed it will entirely destroy their business on the city front in the handling of coal, sugar, etc., and feel that it is necessary to defeat the bill for self-protection.

Police Court.

There was a lengthy session of the Police Court yesterday, caused mainly by an immense body of evidence rolled up in defense of a Chinaman charged with a social crime, who was remanded for judgment. Kana and Kalama each were fined the usual $5 and costs for drunkenness. Ah Sam committed an assault, which cost him $6.50. Ah Sin and Achi, for assault and battery, had each similar contributions to make to the exchequer. Kaupuni seems to have been seized with the martial spirit of the times, on Monday morning, for he arose early, or else stayed up the previous night, and went forth to slay. With a military belt and scabbard girt about him, and a naked sword in his hand, he entered Ah Shing's house on South street. Proceeding to the Celestial's chamber door, he called on Ah Shing to let him in or die by the sword. Instead of that Ah Shing called the police, and the valiant knight was admitted to the station without having to cut his way in. This exploit goes down in the Honolulu police archives as bringing in $10 to the revenues and ten days' hard labor for the benefit of the Hawaiian Kingdom.

THE SHIPWRECK.

Farther Gleanings—A Relief Expedition.

The lifeboat in which the seven sailors of the Dunnottar Castle made the fifty-two days' passage from Ocean Island to Kauai, is twenty-five feet long and eight feet beam. She is lugged-rigged and carried two jibs and a jigger sail. The material of the jibs is sheeting, rather flimsy for ocean blasts.

Yesterday morning Major J. H. Wodehouse, H. B. M. Commissioner, chartered the steamship Waialeale of the Inter-Island Steamship Company's fleet, to go to Ocean Island for the rescue of the captain and remainder of the crew of the wrecked ship. The various newspaper managers desired to send reporters with the expedition, and there were many other applicants for accommodations, including photographers, artists, and men of leisure. It was, however, deemed inexpedient to take a large company, and, to avoid the appearance of partiality in taking a few, all were refused. Mr. J. D. Strong, the painter, was afterward allowed to go for the purpose of making sketches of the island, wreck, etc. No others except officials and persons engaged for special services were granted passage.

The steamer was supplied during the day with coal and provisions for the cruise. Materials for a shed, together with water tanks, were also put on board, to be erected on the island by the Hawaiian Government, for the benefit of any shipwrecked people in the future. The shed is to be twelve feet by sixteen feet, roofed with corrugated iron and fitted with gutters for catching rain. The steamer sailed from the Wilder Steamship Company's docks, at a few minutes before five o'clock, amid cheering from a crowd on the wharf and the passengers on board the steamship Kinau, just about to depart for windward ports. The Waialeale is commanded for the cruise by Mr. Hall, chief officer, who brought her down from the Coast a few weeks ago. Mr. Norman, first mate of the Dunnottar Castle, accompanies the relief party. Dr. Craddock goes as physician, representing the Board of Health; Mr. Baird, as British Consular agent; Col. James Boyd, as agent of the Hawaiian Government, and Mr. Strong, as mentioned above. It is calculated that the trip will take about six days each way, which with a few days spent on the island would bring the expedition back in about three weeks. As turtles and fish are plentiful and easily caught at the island, apprehensions felt about the insulated company have regard mainly to the scarcity of their water supply. Also, several of them are reported by the rescued party to have been in a feeble condition, and may not survive until the arrival of the relief expedition.

It is noted that the last arrival of shipwrecked sailors, prior to that of the seven of the Dunnottar Castle, was in 1881, when the crew of the British ship Norval, burned in mid-ocean, were picked up off Hawaii by the Likilike, then in command of Captain King. They had been borne by favoring breezes 2,100 miles in twenty days in an open boat, arriving in good health.

Battalion Drill.

Last evening about eight o'clock the rattle of drums betokened that the moonlight battalion drill, postponed the previous night on account of the weather, was to be held. At a few minutes of nine Palace Square wore a military aspect. White uniforms were all around the place, while stacks of arms glittered down the center of the square. A good many people were gathered on both sides to see the parade, the larger proportion of them being natives. The roll of the drum brought the flitting soldiery from all the borders of the square, and they fell into line with a celerity that would do them credit on a call of danger. Four companies formed ranks, namely: King's Guards, 44 rank and file; King's Own, 32; Queen's Own, 24, and Prince's Own, 16, making up a battalion 116 strong, exclusive of officers. There was first drill in manual exercises by companies, lasting a few minutes. Then the King, acting as Colonel, drilled the battalion in a few movements of the same kind. By command of His Majesty, Major R. H. Baker, acting as Lieutenant-Colonel, published the orders in Hawaiian for the next battalion drill, to take place to-night if our reporter's interpreter is correct. Then the officers presented themselves in line before the King, who addressed them in English, saying he hoped they would have the orders just given faithfully carried out, after which he gave the command to dismiss the battalion. The drill lasted about ten minutes. There was no marching. Remarkable precision and accuracy characterized the arms exercises.

A Canadian Opinion.

LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY.

The House was occupied the greater part of the forenoon in debating the Hawaiian Board of Health or rather the kahuna's bill. The bill creates a Board of Health, all the members of which shall be Hawaiians, and empowers them to license persons represented to be skilled in native medicine to practice their method of treatment. Subordinate Boards are proposed to be formed in all the taxation districts, so that when this bill passes, if it does pass, the Hawaiian Islands will be under the medical superintendence of only thirty Boards of Health. The District Boards will receive applications, and inspect the credentials of candidates, and recommend them to the Central Board located in Honolulu. Intending practitioners will pay fees on receiving their licenses, but the members of the Boards are not provided for in the matter of emoluments. After a lengthy debate, it was discovered that the consideration of the bill was premature, the select committee to whom it was referred not having reported. The noon recess intercepted the further progress of the measure.

The afternoon session took up the second reading of the pawnbroker's bill, specifying the business which shall constitute a pawnbroker, providing for the granting of licenses, fixing the limit of percentages to be charged by pawnbrokers, and imposing penalties on all persons engaging in this business without license, as well as on licensed parties who violate the conditions of their licenses. The bill passed to third reading. The next business was the amendment of the bill to amend section 191 of the Civil Code for the better regulation of the Government water supply. The main feature of the measure is that it proposes to make arrears of water rates a lien upon the premises supplied, and was vigorously opposed by Messrs. Dare, Thurston, Bishop and Dole. A variety of amendments was offered, and sections, clauses and amendments were getting considerably mixed, when a count out occurred; and there being no quorum, the House adjourned.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky is not a medicated liquor, but a pure, unadulterated whisky for medicinal use, free from fusel oil and all noxious impurities, and is prescribed by physicians. It is a medicine for the sick and feeble, and a beverage for the million, because it is absolutely pure.
